

Jocelyn Young, DO, MSc, FAAFP

Dr. Jocelyn Young is a board certified family physician practicing in Upstate NY. In addition to her residency training, she has also earned a Masters of Science in Health Professions Education and has special interest in medical education. She currently serves as the Designated Institutional Officer & Director of Medical Education at United Health Services Hospitals in Johnson City, NY; as well as being a core faculty member of the family medicine residency program. Dr. Young is clinically active in outpatient and inpatient medicine as well as significant involvement in organized medicine at the local, state, and national levels.